The Bureau of Engraving and Printing

One-Hour Guided Tour

Tuesday, March 24

Our reserved start times are 1:30 pm & 2:00 pm

Meet in the Hotel Lobby at 12:40 pm to take the Metro Blue Line as a group to the Smithsonian stop. You can now ride Metro simply by tapping your credit card. Take the 12th St SW & Independence Ave SW Exit. Walk 0.3 miles to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing's mission is to develop and produce United States currency notes, trusted worldwide. BEP's vision is to set the world standard for banknotes and document security through excellence in manufacturing and innovation.

The BEP prints billions of dollars – referred to as Federal Reserve notes – each year for delivery to the Federal Reserve System. The Federal Reserve operates as the nation's central bank and serves to ensure that adequate amounts of currency and coin are in circulation. The BEP does not produce coins – all U.S. coinage is minted by the United States Mint. The BEP also advises other federal agencies on document security matters. The BEP's robust research and development efforts focus on counterfeit deterrent technologies and production process efficiencies. The BEP develops overt and covert security features for U.S. currency that keep the number of counterfeits in circulation low.

Be sure to check out the BEP gift shop for unique and fun souvenirs!

SCOTT KUPOR
Director
Office of Personnel Management

Scott Kupor was sworn in as Director of the U.S. Office of Personnel Management (OPM) on July 14, 2025. In this role, Kupor leads the Trump Administration's efforts to build a high-performing, accountable, and mission-driven workforce that upholds the trust of every American taxpayer. He brings nearly three decades of executive leadership and investment experience in the technology industry to the federal workforce.

Before joining OPM, Kupor served as a managing partner at Andreessen Horowitz, a venture capital firm he helped build from its inception in 2009 into one of the largest in the United States, managing more than $45 billion in assets. He previously held senior leadership roles at a pioneering web hosting company acquired by Hewlett Packard (HP), where he led the company's global support organization, a one-billion-dollar business within HP's software division.

An advocate for efficient and transparent capital markets, Kupor is a former Chairman of the National Venture Capital Association and has testified before Congress and federal regulatory bodies on issues related to economic growth and innovation. He has also served on several nonprofit boards, including St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, and has taught entrepreneurship at the Stanford Graduate School of Business.

Kupor earned his B.A. and J.D. from Stanford University. He is originally from Houston, Texas, and is happily married to his wife, Laura with whom he has three daughters.

VIRGINIA “GINNY” HILL
Senior Executive Coach & Facilitator
The Partnership for Public Service

Virginia (Ginny) Hill serves as a Senior Executive Coach & Facilitator at the Partnership for Public Service, a nonpartisan non-profit organization in Washington, DC. She is a Professional Certified Coach (PCC) by the International Coaching Federation (ICF) with over 750 hours of paid coaching. Ginny’s passion is working with leaders to reach their full potential through developing self-command, growth mindset, and an enhanced ability to work with others. For the past 11 years, she has partnered with federal and state government clients to design, deliver, and evaluate training and coaching to seek transformation for public service leaders.

Ginny’s career began in the federal government as a Presidential Management Fellow (PMF) at the National Institutes of Health (NIH) in 2007. As a PMF, she experienced a federal leadership program, and she later went on to manage leadership programs and trainings for the NIH Office of Human Resources.

Outside of work, Ginny sings in multiple bands, enjoys traveling, and tries to keep up with her one-year-old daughter!

Zina B. Sutch, PhD
American University
Washington, DC

Patrick S. Malone, PhD
American University
Washington, DC

Zina hails from New England where she earned her bachelor's degree from Clark University, in Massachusetts. She enjoyed spending her free time in Boston and NYC until she moved to Washington, DC to pursue her master's degree in Special Education from The George Washington University. While working in the field of education she earned her Ph.D. from the University of Maryland studying behavioral disorders. She taught in public and private schools and served as the Director of a private school for students with emotional and behavioral disorders before joining the Federal Government and ultimately being promoted to the Senior Executive Service. She serves as faculty in the Key Executive Leadership Program in the School of Public Affairs at American University teaching courses on leadership, team-building, and succession planning.

Patrick was born and raised in Texas, growing up in Austin while receiving his bachelor's degree at Texas State University studying Health Care Administration. After graduating and working as a surgical technician, he moved to San Antonio to complete his master's degree at Trinity University. He worked in the health care industry in the private sector before he joined the Navy and served for 23 years in the Medical Service Corps. He earned his Ph.D. in Public Administration and American Government from the School of Public Affairs at American University and is currently the Director of the Key Executive Leadership Program. He teaches courses on emotional intelligence, adult development, and leadership.

Zina and Patrick have multiple publications including: Selfies in the Workplace; Kindness and Survival of the Fittest; Go Ahead, Laugh – Why Humor Makes for a Better Workplace; 10 Common Leadership Myths and How to Overcome Them; Creating a New Normal? Try a Human Approach; and All You Need is Love: How to Nurture Compassionate Love in the Workplace. Patrick's TED Talk, "Thinking about Time," is available at <http://tedxtalks.ted.com> and his co-edited book, The Handbook of Federal Leadership and Administration was published in November 2016. Their critically-acclaimed coauthored book Leading with Love and Laughter – Letting Go and Getting Real at Work was released in Spring 2021. Patrick's book Emotional Intelligence in Talent Development came out in October 2021. And, wait for it! Their much-anticipated new book Little BIG Decisions came out in Fall 2025.

Zina and Patrick live on the beautiful Chesapeake Bay, Maryland, on a 40' Bavaria Vision sailboat. Never having sailed, they accepted an invitation to sail with friends and found themselves captivated by life on the Bay, learning something new about sailing, themselves, and each other almost every day. Without knowing how to sail, or what anything on the sailboat was called (you can't believe the funny names that make up a sailboat: keel, luff, boom), they made the leap, purchased the boat and christened it Madness.

SCOTT M. CURTIS
President/CEO, TWI Institute

As the CEO of the TWI Institute, Scott brings 37 years of manufacturing experience and leadership and a deep working knowledge of TWI programs. As Plant Manager of Albany International in Homer, New York, for seven years Scott was not only able to keep the business viable, but thrive in the face of rapidly escalating raw material costs and stiff competition from overseas markets. Much of the improvements achieved, such as an operating income increase of 375% over 4 years, were the result of a successful Lean implementation and the development of a world class TWI program. The achievements from the TWI implementation were featured as a case study in Bob Wrona and Patrick Graupp's book Implementing TWI: Creating and Managing a Skills Based Culture, published by Productivity Press in November 2010.

Scott began his career with Mobil Chemical as a project engineer responsible for large capital project installations. He also held positions as a Process Engineer, Maintenance Manager, Plant Superintendent and Plant Manager in his 13-year career with Mobil/Pactiv. Scott moved on to Huhtamaki Consumer Packaging in Fulton, New York, and spent 5 years as Operations Manager. During his time there the business experienced significant expansion, successful negotiation of a four-year union contract, and the beginning implementation of their Lean systems.

STEVE MEDLAND
Master Trainer, TWI Institute

Steve Medland has spent a career leading, advising, teaching, and learning operations, lean, and supply chain related practices. As a professional, Steve was a director, manager, and analyst of production, warehouse and distribution, and inventory management in industries including grocery retail, metal fabrication and machining, and office supplies and furniture.

As a business coach, Steve has worked with organizations in aerospace, automotive, banking services, distribution, energy, healthcare and hospital, medical devices, pharmaceutical, and software. Steve has also taught public and private seminars globally on lean systems, inventory management, and Toyota leadership practices. A common theme in Steve's consulting work has been lean culture and learning, from the shop floor to the executive level.

In addition to his work in manufacturing, Steve enjoys applying lean principles and other best practices to non-manufacturing processes in the supply chain such as the customer interface, supply management, inventory management and optimization, and distribution. In addition to his industry and management experience, Steve spent ten years teaching Operations and Supply Chain courses to graduates, undergraduates, and executives in business and engineering colleges at the University of Oregon, the University of Colorado-Boulder, Colorado State University, and the Bainbridge Graduate Institute. Steve received an MBA in Supply Chain and Operations Management from the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Mika J. Cross (pronounced Mee-Kah)

Mika J. Cross is a nationally and internationally recognized expert in human capital strategy, workplace transformation, and organizational health and performance. As an award-winning leader in workforce innovation, she has shaped precedent-setting policies and programs that enhance resilience, wellbeing, and performance for government employees, military personnel, contractors, and private-sector teams alike.

With over two decades of distinguished federal and military service, Mika has led enterprise-wide transformation efforts across the U.S. Intelligence Community and the U.S. Federal Government, serving in agencies like the Department of Agriculture, Department of Labor, and the U.S. Office of Personnel Management, among others—impacting globally distributed workforces of 100,000+. Her leadership has been instrumental in advancing holistic workplace solutions during post-9/11 reforms and beyond.

Mika's expertise is trusted at the highest levels of government, with multiple Congressional Oversight testimonies shaping the future of federal work. Her insights have influenced national policy on organizational health, resilience, performance, engagement, and workforce wellbeing.

A proud U.S. Army veteran who served as both a commissioned officer and enlisted soldier, Mika brings firsthand knowledge of military culture to her transformative approach. She has advised private-sector organizations on talent strategies, recruitment, and workplace agility across industries and international markets.

Driven to elevate the human experience at work, Mika is an internationally recognized speaker, leadership strategist, and workforce transformation expert. She delivers custom training, executive development, and advisory solutions that ignite performance and build resilient, future-ready teams – across sectors, industries, time zones, or occupations.
